Attacks on the rise, banks targeted Not only are consumers unable to accurately spot fakes, they are regularly surrendering personal information. According to a study released in April by Gartner's Avivah Litan, 1.78 million Americans say they've fallen for a fake e-mail and willingly provided credit card numbers, bank account PINs, and other information to computer criminals.

Perhaps an additional 1 million users have done so and don't realize it, the study said. In all, the study concluded that about $1.2 billion has been stolen from U.S. financial institutions through phishing attacks.

A study to be released next week by the Anti-Phishing Working Group shows phishing activity is still skyrocketing -- there was a 19 percent increase in the amount of phishing attacks between May and June. There were nearly 50 new attacks per day in June, the report indicates.

The most popular target, with 492 separate phishing attacks in one month, was once again Citibank. Attacks against banks in general continued to rise in June, with US Bank-fake e-mails

On Monday, the SEC charged 11 people for their roles in the alleged blockchain scheme that spanned the US, Russia, the Philippines, and other countries. It is said that Forsage launched in January 2020 with a website that allowed investors to send money via smart contracts on the Ethereum, Tron, and Binance blockchains. These transactions totaled more than $300 million, according to the SEC. However, like any other pyramid scheme, the primary way that investors made money from Forsage is a textbook pyramid and Ponzi scheme." "As the complaint alleges, Forsage is a fraudulent pyramid scheme launched on a massive scale and Cyber Unit, in a statement. "Fraudsters cannot circumvent the federal securities laws by focusing their schemes on smart contracts and blockchains." To get in on the multi-level marketing scheme, according to the regulator, a Forsage investor created a crypto wallet and then bought "slots," which allowed them to earn money off of others recruited into the scheme, called "downlines." "When an investor purchased a slot, a portion of that investment was directed to the persons who recruited the investor (the 'uplines') and the investor in turn became an upline to whomever the investor recruited," according to the court documents. "Thus, all payouts to earlier investors were made using funds received from later investors." Despite cease-and-desist actions against Forsage by the Securities and Exchange Commission of the Philippines in September 2020 and Montana Commissioner of Securities and Insurance in the US in March 2021, Forsage's founders and others continued to promote the fraud on YouTube and social media channels and draw millions of users to the website, the SEC claimed. The individuals charged include the four Forsage founders — Vladimir Okhotnikov, Jane Doe aka Lola Ferrari, Mikhail Sergeev, and Sergey Maslakov — along with US-based promoters so-called Crypto Crusaders. Most of them have participated in other multi-level marketing schemes, according to the court documents. Okhotnikov, a Russian national thought to reside in the Republic of Georgia, served as "the face" of the operation and one of its lead promoters on YouTube videos. Fellow co-founder Ferrari, whose actual identity is unknown but calls herself "Lola Ferrari," is believed to be a Russian national residing in Bali, Indonesia, according to the SEC. She's the self-proclaimed "goddess" of Forsage. Additionally, co-founder Sergeev, also known as "Mike Mooney," "Gleb," and "Gleb Million," is thought to live in Moscow. He appeared in promotional interviews as the company's "development director." Finally, Maslakov, believed to reside in Moscow or Gelendzhik, Russia, is the fourth co-founder who also appeared in promo videos for the scam, according to the SEC. In addition to charging the four founders, the lawsuit charges Cheri Beth Bowen, of Pelahatchie, Mississippi; Ronald R. Deering, of Coeur d' Alene, Idaho; Samuel D. Ellis, of Louisville, Kentucky; Mark F. Hamlin, of Henrico, Virginia; Carlos L. Martinez, of Chicago, Illinois; Alisha R. Shepperd, of Dunedin, Florida; and Sarah L. Theissen, of Hartford, Wisconsin, with violating the registration and anti-fraud provisions of the federal securities laws. Two of the defendants, Ellis and Theissen will pay disgorgement and civil penalties as determined by the court. Both settlements are subject to court approval. ® Skip to contents Navigation Click for more information Safety, and well-being of all patients, community members, and key stakeholders that interact with WGU students at various clinical/host sites.
